This paper has been prepared for discussion at a public meeting of the Accounting Standards Advisory Forum. The views expressed in this paper do not represent the views of the International Accounting Standards Board (IASB) or any individual IASB member. Any comments in the paper do not purport to set out acceptable or unacceptable application of IFRS® Accounting Standards. The IASB's technical decisions are made in public and reported in the IASB® Update.

Introduction

 The purpose of this paper is to provide ASAF members with the update of Primary Financial Statements project. The Appendix summarises proposals in the Exposure Draft, feedback received and the tentative decisions regarding the topics discussed by the IASB as of May 2022.

The Exposure Draft proposed that an entity presents the following new subtotals in the statement of profit or loss (paragraph 60 of the Exposure Draft):</li> <li>a) operating profit or loss (operating profit);</li> <li>b) operating profit or loss and income and expenses from integral associates and joint ventures; and</li> <li>c) profit or loss before financing and income tax.</li> </ul>	<ul> <li>B1. Most respondents agreed with the proposals to introduce defined subtotals in the statement of profit or loss. They think the proposals have the potential to result in useful information and improve comparability between entities.</li> <li>B2. Many respondents agreed with the proposals to define the operating category as a residual category. However, some respondents disagreed with defining the operating category as a residual category and preferred a 'positive' or 'direct' definition because they disagreed with the content of operating profit.</li> </ul>	<ul> <li>Confirmed proposals</li> <li>C1. The IASB tentatively confirmed that entities would be required to present an operating profit subtotal in the statement of profit or loss and not to develop a direct definition of operating profit.</li> <li>Subtotals–profit before financing and income tax</li> <li>Confirmed proposals</li> <li>C2. 			C12. In addition, the IASB tentatively decided to develop disclosure requirements for the situation in which an entity designates an entire hybrid contract as at fair value through profit or loss and as a result does not separate from the host financial liability an embedded derivative that is otherwise required to be separated by IFRS 9 Financial Instruments . The objective of these disclosure requirements would be to give users of financial statements information about when the use of the fair value option changes the classification of income and expenses.
			C13. For liabilities that arise from transactions that do not involve only the raising of finance, except some such liabilities specified by the IASB, the IASB tentatively decided to require an entity to classify in the financing category of the statement of profit or loss interest expense and the effect of changes in interest rates, when such amounts are identified applying the requirements of IFRS Accounting Standards.
			C14. The IASB specified that this tentative decision does not apply to liabilities that arise from transactions that do not involve only the raising of finance and that:
			a) are hybrid contracts in the scope of IFRS 9 measured at amortised cost; and

Many respondents expressed concerns about the proposed classification of foreign exchange differences and of fair value gains and losses on derivatives and hedging instruments—they question whether the benefits of such classification would outweigh the costs.	C16. The IASB tentatively confirmed that fair value gains or losses on financial instruments used for risk management that are designated or used for risk management but are not designated as hedging instruments should be classified in the category affected by the risk the entity manages, except when doing so would involve:
			a) grossing up of fair value gains or losses (derivatives designated as hedging instruments); or
			b) undue cost or effort (derivatives not designated as hedging instruments).
			Changes to the proposals
			C17. The IASB tentatively decided in cases where classifying fair value gains or losses in the category of the statement of profit or loss affected by the risk the entity manages involves grossing up of fair value gains or losses (derivatives designated as hedging instruments) or undue cost or effort (derivatives not designated as hedging instruments) an entity would classify all fair value gains or losses in the operating category.

The Exposure Draft proposed that the operating category would include:</li> <li>a) income and expenses from investments made in the course of an entity's main business activities (paragraph 48 of the Exposure Draft). For example, this proposal would apply to insurers and investment entities. An entity would assess on an asset-by-asset basis whether investments are made in the course of its main business activities.<sup>4</sup></li> <li>b) some or all income and expenses from financing activities and income and expenses from cash and cash equivalents if the entity provides financing to customers as a main business activity (paragraph 51 of the Exposure Draft). For example, this proposal would apply to banks and entities that provide financing to customers purchasing their products. The choice of whether some or all such income and expenses is included in the operating category would be an accounting policy choice.<sup>5</sup></li> </ul>	<ul> <li>B11. Most respondents agreed with the proposals to require entities to classify in the operating category:</li> <li>a) income and expenses from investments made in the course of an entity's main business activities; and</li> <li>b) income and expenses from financing activities and income and expenses from cash and cash equivalents if the entity provides financing to customers as a main business activity.</li> <li>Main business activities</li> <li>B12. The IASB tentatively decided to provide additional guidance by clarifying that:</li> <li>a) the role of main business activities is limited to assessing whether an entity invests in the course of main business activities or provides financing to customers as a main business activity. The assessment is performed at the reporting-entity level. Any changes in the outcome of the assessment should be applied prospectively with disclosure of: <ul> <li>i) the fact that there has been a change; and</li> <li>ii) information about the effect of the change that would allow users to perform trend analysis on operating profit;</li> </ul> </li> <li>b) investing in the course of its main business activity is a matter of fact and not an assertion. An entity will need to use its judgement in assessing whether it invests in the course of its main business activity. The assessment should be based on observable evidence to the extent available. Examples of observable evidence include: <ul> <li>iii)operating performance measures used in public communications; and</li> <li>iv) information about segments, if an entity applies IFRS 8 Operating Segments.</li> </ul> </li> </ul>

The Exposure Draft proposed the method presented should be the one that provides the most useful information to users of financial statements and that entities should not present line items mixing the two methods, with the exceptions of line items that are required line items. In addition, the Exposure Draft proposed to describe the factors to consider when deciding which method of operating expense analysis should be used.	<ul> <li>Method that provides the most useful information</li> <li>B22. The Exposure Draft proposed introducing a definition of 'unusual income and expenses'; and proposed requiring all entities to disclose unusual income and expenses in a single note. The Exposure Draft also proposed application guidance to help an entity to identify its unusual income and expenses.</li> <li>A21. The proposed requirements are set out in paragraphs 100–102, B67–B75 of the Exposure Draft and paragraphs BC122– BC144 of the Basis for Conclusions on the Exposure Draft describe the IASB's reasons for the proposals and discuss approaches that were considered but rejected by the IASB.</li> </ul>	<ul> <li>Definition of unusual items</li> <li>B26. The key messages from the feedback on the proposals relating to unusual items are: <ul> <li>a) most respondents who commented on this question, including almost all users of financial statements, agreed with the IASB defining unusual items. Users explained that they wish to identify recurring or normalised earnings but have to rely on voluntary disclosures by an entity to do so. Defining unusual items and requiring their disclosure would provide consistent input for users' analysis. Other respondents also indicated they expected defining unusual items would provide useful information. A few respondents specifically supported the discipline that they expected a definition would provide, thus reducing opportunistic classification of items as unusual; and</li> <li>b) however, most of these respondents, including some users, did not agree with the IASB's definition of unusual items. They said important aspects of the definition were unclear and suggested various clarifications and changes. Those suggestions did not lead to a clear consensus on what an alternative definition should be.</li> </ul> </li> <li>Disclosures</li> <li>B27. 		of profit or loss because it would provide a clear 'normalised' profit amount, but others thought that would add clutter to the statement and give too great an incentive for opportunistic labelling of items as unusual; some agreed with disclosure in a single note because it allows easy access to the information and helps in tracking what items are classified as unusual over time. Others said it would be more helpful to include the information in the notes for the specific items of income and expenses in question, for example the notes for IAS 37 provisions or IAS 36 impairments. They also said that the requirement for a single note could lead to duplication of information required by other IFRS Accounting Standards or regulations to be given elsewhere, for example in other notes or in the management commentary.	<ul> <li>b) to proceed with the definition: <ul> <li>Income and expenses have limited recurrence when it is reasonable to expect that income or expenses that are similar in type and amount will cease, and once ceased will not arise again, before the end of the assessment period.</li> <li>c) to explore how to define the assessment period, for example by linking it to the period of budgets and forecasts or specifying a minimum and/or maximum number of years.</li> </ul> </li> <li>Disclosures <ul> <li>C47. The IASB will consider at a future meeting an analysis of the implications in relation to forward-looking information of the disclosure requirement proposed in the Exposure Draft for a narrative description of why income and expenses that are similar in type or amount are not expected to arise for several future annual periods (now the assessment period).</li> </ul> </li> <li>Confirmed proposals <ul> <li>C48. Subject to the outcome of analysis in C47, the IASB tentatively decided:</li> <li>d) to continue to include in the definition income and expenses that are dissimilar to those expected to arise in the future because they are lower in amount.</li> <li>e) to reconfirm the proposal to require, for such items of income and expenses, disclosure of the amount recognised in the period.</li> <li>C49.
